

Term: "Defensible"

Definition:

A thesis statement is defensible if a) an opposing argument / alternative view can reasonably be argued (even if it's the weaker argument) and b) it is not an obvious truth about the content / text.