Term: "Appropriate Distance"

Definition:

Strong analytical writing keeps an appropriate distance from the reader through both pronoun choice and word choice. Writers can break the distance between themselves and the reader without using first or second person pronouns.