Term: "Directly Relevant"

Definition:

Directly relevant evidence goes beyond just being related to the sub-argument. Directly relevant evidence strongly and specifically illustrates the sub-argument at hand. While this rubric does not use the language 'best evidence', directly relevant evidence does not leave the reader questioning if better evidence was available.