

Term: “Reasonable Essay Structure”

Definition:

Without being too formulaic, essays with reasonable structure have a clear introduction and conclusion that are multiple sentences in length bookending multiple body paragraphs with appropriate content. The ordering of these body paragraphs and the intentionality to that order is scored in the ‘assertions’ row of the rubric.